

I WANT TO DESTROY AMERICA

I WANT TO DESTROY AMERICA is a documentary about the street musician, Hisao Shinagawa, a Japanese singer/songwriter who has refused to give up on his elusive dream of success and stardom, regardless of personal cost and the solitary reality of his life. For 42 years, he has cast himself as the Japanese Bob Dylan.

Moving from Tokyo to America in 1974, following in the footsteps of his hero Woody Guthrie, he befriended Johnny Cash and Townes Van Zandt after hitchhiking to Nashville. Now at 60, he plays his music on the streets of Los Angeles while living in near poverty, still hoping to find an audience in a manner that is admirable, bittersweet, and ultimately, heartbreaking.

FLOW

A 22 year old gay filmmaker talks about his work and personal life with an unseen person behind the camera. Also included are four of his short films, "Hysterio Passio" which evokes images of men's passions, "Matricide," in which a lawyer asks a young gay man why he killed his mother, "Key in the Heart," in which an Asian man in drag hunts vampires. And in "Fall, 1990" college students meet their roommates. "Flow" begins with a satiric look at the vectors of viruses and ends with a chat with our fictional filmmaker's hip mother.

"Each one reveals a vibrant cinematic imagination and a detached self-awareness... What ensues is edgy, wryly amusing, tender, wise and credible."

- Kevin Thomas, The Los Angeles Times

"His way with symbolism... is sure-handed, recalling at its best, classic surrealist movies and their impenetrable yet perfectly knowable truths. And so these shorts... feel emphatically cohesive and immediate."

- Hazel-Dawn Dumpert, LA Weekly

CATS OF ROME

Over 200,000 stray cats now live in Rome, descendants of Egyptian cats brought there 3,000 years ago. These stray cats are not wild, but need human help to survive. However, some Romans consider them equal to rodents. This film documents six months at an Italian cat sanctuary, where it's a never ending struggle for the cats and the people who take care of them.

THE LIFE OF MILLION DOLLAR BABIES

This film tells the story of women competing in Golden Gloves boxing. Women had been trying to get into the competition for many years, but not until 1994 was the case for women given real attention. Threatened with a civil lawsuit from the ACLU, women were finally let in for the first time in 1995. As of today, boxing is the only sport in the Olympic games exclusively for men. This film follows eight women in the 2005 tournament who each think they can be the next champion. The filmmaker, Leyla, was a sparring partner for Hilary Swank while preparing for "Million Dollar Baby".

'TIL DEATH DO US PART

'Til Death Do Us Part takes the viewer on a journey with incarcerated battered women, as they relate their stories from first falling in love, through the abuse by their spouses, the murder, trial, parole process, and finally, for one woman, freedom. It is thought in our society that a woman can leave an abusive relationship at any time. However, the women in this film prove the contrary. They were under the age of 24, isolated from their families and had virtually no money. They all reached a point where there was a final beating in which that survival instinct prevailed. In these final moments, they snapped and killed. No one has heard their stories until now.

HITLER'S JEWISH SOLDIERS

By Nazi law anyone who was 25% Jewish was a Jew. Remarkably, many of these partial Jews, or "Mischlinge" (the German word for "mutt") were proud Germans, with roots that went back hundreds of years. Many were drafted into the Nazi army.

This fascinating documentary examines the life of four men who faced this paradox. "Hitler's Jewish Soldiers" tells an engrossing story of madness and vicious absurdity; a study into the systematic mind of Hitler's personal chaos.

SUGAR

"An extremely unsettling vision of private terrors by filmmaking collaborators Reynold Reynolds, Patrick Jolley and Samara Golden. Plays like a fever nightmare of any New Yorker who's lived in a one-room living box. Pic is a triumph of lower-than-low budget filmmaking, with mainly one thesp (Golden in an outrageously demanding performance that indicates a commitment above and beyond the call of duty), one extremely messy room (with a spooky thick-glass window looking out onto a crowded Manhattan street) and a complex visual and aural design involving camerawork that appears to crawl under the skin and Bruce Odland's and Sam Auinger's stunning sound design."

BAZAAR BIZARRE

In 1988, a man was found running down the street naked, beaten, and bloody wearing nothing but a dog collar. He told police about Bob Berdella, who had captured him, held him hostage, raped him, tortured him, and photographed him. Police arrested Berdella and found hundreds of photographs, a torture log, human teeth and a human skull in his home. Berdella had murdered six young men after drugging them and performing sexual torture. He met some of his victims at "Bob's Bizarre Bazaar" where he sold artifacts related to the darker side of human nature. After death, Berdella would cut up the bodies with a chainsaw and put them into trash bags for trash collection. It is believed that Berdella used specific organs of the victims as meat in several food dishes he would serve at his shop.

OLYMPIA The Leni Riefenstahl Archival Collection

This limited edition 2-disc set features the complete original version of OLYMPIA, presented for the first time on DVD.

Part 1: (Festival of the Nations) - Disc 1

Riefenstahl shot a documentary that celebrates the human body by combining the poetry of bodies in motion with close-ups of athletes in the heat of competition. Includes Jesse Owen's sprint races at the 1936 Olympic games and Adolf Hitler looking on in amazement as German wins an unprecedented four Gold Medals.

Part 2: (Festival of Beauty) - Disc 2

Riefenstahl captures the grace of the athletes during field hockey, soccer, bicycling, equestrian, aquatic and gymnastic events. Highlights are the Pentathlon and the Decathlon, which was won by American Glenn Morris; it ends with the triumphant conclusion of the games.

SEX & THE CELTS

Dramatic reconstructions reveal such unexpected aspects of Irish history as the bisexual orientation of the macho Celtic warrior elite. Interviewees tell of an island which once had the right of a woman to experience orgasm enshrined in its legal framework. Documentary footage explores the visual heritage of the erotic from the Neolithic landscape of "detached sexual objects." Sex & The Celts pauses in its timeline to subject particularly interesting shifts in sexual paradigms to the scrutiny of historical analysis...and some dryly humorous comment.
