SYNOPSIS:

Perhaps the last great, truly independent film, Boxes was made for less than $300 by filmmakers Rene Besson & James Portelese, demonstrating once and for all that money does not make the movie. Ideas, imagination and a small digital camera can be more powerful than a million dollars.

Boxes is about the boxes that dominate our everyday lives. You wake up in a box [your apartment], greeted by a box [your TV], drive in a box [your car], work in a box [your cubicle], talk to most people from a box [your phone] -- from the cradle to the coffin, life is a series of boxes. You're in one, whether you realize it or not.

DVD SPECIAL FEATURES:

Chapter Selection, filmmaker's audio commentary, trailer, letterboxed, deleted scenes.
