Synopsis

Yo is a gay university student. Although he's been in love with Noboru, a friend from the club he belongs to at university, he doesn't have the courage to "come out" to his family and friends.

People say it's easier for sexual minorities to be open today compared to the past. However, there are not just problems with friendships and love lives, but also other things to worry about like job hunting and marriage. "Coming Out" addresses the issues of the gay Everyman as he juggles his identities, including his "secret life."

The question is, how long can he keep this part of his life a secret?
