Synopsis

In The Colette's Heroines Collection, her women are brought to vivid life through the passion, creativity and desires of these wonderful films. You too can see why Colette's beloved characters have so profoundly influenced French culture. Explore France's most secret, lusty tales, with these four classic stories.

In "The Other Woman," Farou (Jean Rochefort) is an author whose success is matched only by his lechery. During the rehearsal of his newest play, a scandal unfolds. Farou's wife Fanny (Anny Duperey) knows that during his "creative" periods, her husband gets a particular itch that he can't resist scratching, but her own jealousy has finally reached the boiling point. It starts when Jane (Caroline Sihol), the deliciously sexy secretary that Farou has brought on as a live in assistant, falls in love with the artist.
